

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS.

Please read before consulting the Catalogue.

It is a distinctive feature of this Catalogue that it separates the notices of the deceased from those of the living, arranging the former by themselves in the order in which the deaths occurred. This plan has its disadvantages as well as its advantages. That it renders possible the stereotyping of the Necrological list, in some future edition, when it shall have been made as complete, up to date, as it is ever likely to be, seemed to the compiler a decisive consideration. As long as a man is living, his record is subject to change, and is therefore not ready to stereotype. Under this view of the case, the names of the deceased, in the few instances where the date of death has not been at least approximately ascertained, have been placed in the Class lists and not in the Necrology.

With some variations, each full notice consists of two or three parts, viz: first, statistics of personal history; second, statistics of professional services; third, special statistics. In the professional statistics, the name of a place is that of a field of labor, and presumably, a field in which the man is a pastor or acting pastor. Wherever the case is known to be otherwise, the design has been to indicate it.

The design has been to insert the names of all persons who, at any known date, have been trustees, treasurers, professors or students of Auburn; and to insert each name in all the lists to which it belongs. But the full notice of each person appears in only one list. A reference to this is given in the other places where the name occurs.

The full notice of men who deceased at a known date appears, in all instances, in the Necrological list. In the other lists, simply the name is given, with the date of death, the latter serving as a reference to the place of the full notice.

The full notice of living men who have been students, appears in the list of Alumni. In the cases in which any of these have also been trustees, professors, or post graduates, only their names are given in these other lists, with a reference to the class to which they belonged.

In the case of men who belonged to different classes in the Seminary, the full notice is given in the list of the class with which they graduated; but if they did not graduate here, usually in that of the class with which they were first connected.

Those who pursued selected studies only are catalogued with the class with which they principally studied.

As the fullest notice includes all the briefer ones, the latter are omitted in the references in the alphabetical index.

Each class is catalogued in two alphabetical lists, the second of which contains the names of men of whom it is known that they did not graduate with the class, though they were at some time connected with it. In a few special instances, men who substantially completed the course have been listed as graduates, although they were not so, technically.

In the Necrological list, the age at death is given by the nearest birthday, which is sometimes the last birthday, and sometimes not.

When several successive fields of labor or places of residence are in the same State, the mention of the State is ordinarily omitted, except in the first of the successive items. The same method is adopted with names of religious denominations, and of modes of service.

The Catalogue shows some lack of uniformity in the spelling of names of places. In most instances this is due to their being variously spelled by intelligent correspondents. There is also a great lack of uniformity in the matter of abbreviations, but this is the less important since no abbreviations are used except such as are self explaining.

It is probable that some of the ordinations reported as by Congregational Associations were actually either by Consociation, or by Council called within the limits of the Association named.

The compiler has deemed it no part of his duty to publish a record of cases of discipline, either by the Seminary authorities or by the various ecclesiastical bodies to which the Auburn men have belonged. He has tried, however, so to adjust the record that it shall not appear to hold any ecclesiastical body responsible for men whom it has dis-fellowshipped.

The compiler has taken especial pleasure in the record of those Alumni who did not enter the ministry, or who soon left it for other pursuits. As good citizens and effective Christian workers, the larger number of these men need not blush to compare themselves with their clerical brethren. They are a standing and sufficient proof that a Theological education is not lost, even if its recipient turns out to have no call to the ministry.

As to "published works," the original idea was to include only volumes in this Catalogue. The mention of pamphlets, articles, and other lesser works has been unsystematically and therefore unequally made. The compiler greatly regrets his lack of uniformity of plan in this matter.

He also regrets that the necessary limitations of his work prevent the specific commemoration in it of certain large classes of the friends of the Seminary, or of certain important phases of the work which the Seminary has accomplished. As it now stands, it does not mention the founders of the Seminary, as such, nor its long roll of commissioners from the Presbyteries, nor the generous men and women who have contributed to its endowment. Such of these men as were also trustees or treasurers or professors or students of Auburn, are, indeed, mentioned in those characters, but, with a few exceptions, their gifts and special services, either to Auburn or to other institutions, are not here recorded.

The compiler has kept in mind that this Catalogue is strictly a book of statistics. He has carefully filed every scrap of information which has come into his possession, that it might be available for use in case any one should feel called upon to write a volume of memorabilia; but he has refused to admit non-statistical material into the Catalogue. Had it been practicable, however, he would gladly have added the following to the lists herein printed:

First, a list of the founders and commissioners of the Seminary, in the order of their first terms of service. This should have included the persons who were present at the preliminary meetings, before the Board of Commissioners was organized, or who otherwise prominently participated in the founding of the Seminary, together with all the commissioners who have actually attended any meeting of the Board, a notice of all the years in which he attended being attached to the name of each one. If a commissioner has at any time been a student of the Seminary, or a trustee or professor or treasurer, it should have been noted, with date, in this list. If not, and if his relations to the Seminary were somewhat permanent, the list should have included statistics of him. Attached to this should have been the roll of the presidents, clerks, and stated clerks of the Commissioners, with their dates of service.

Secondly, a list of the financial benefactors of the Seminary. This should have been, in form, less strictly statistical than the other parts of the Catalogue. It should have included some account of the various attempts to raise money, from the first, with the names of the financial agents, salaried and unsalaried, who have been employed. To this should have been added the names of the principal donors, in the order of their first noted gifts. If the name of a donor occurs in the previous lists of the Catalogue, there should have been a reference to it, and if not, a brief statistical sketch. In this list it would have been possible to do that which could not be done in the other lists, namely, to make grateful and decorous acknowledgment of the beneficence of the men and women who have endowed the Seminary. It might have been completed by adding the history of the names of professorships, buildings, and halls in the old building, with other memorial names.

Thirdly, there should have been a series of generalizations from the preceding lists; for example, a complete list of works published by members of the Seminary; a roll of foreign missionaries, and one of pioneer missionaries; a roll of pastorates exceeding 25 years; a roll of College and Seminary presidents and professors, and tables representing the sources whence the Seminary has drawn its supply of students, and the fields whither it has distributed its graduates.

These additions would have been of genuine statistical value. Nevertheless, in view of the current estimates of the worth of such work, the compiler is more afraid of being censured for having devoted too much time to it than too little.

For accuracy and completeness, it is believed that this Catalogue will compare favorably with other works of the kind. But of course it is far from perfect. If, when you discover an error or a deficiency, you will at once call the attention of the compiler thereto, you will contribute to the greater accuracy of the next Catalogue.

To the Rev. Henry A. Hazen, statistician of the Congregational Churches, to the librarians or others in charge of statistics in the Congregational House and in Williams, Amherst, Hamilton, Yale, Union, Dartmouth, Middlebury and other Colleges and Universities, to Bros. Page, Day, Robinson and Close of the subscription Committee, to a large number of long-suffering clerks of Presbyteries, Associations, Sessions, Consistories, Churches, and of pastors of Churches of various names, to very many of our Alumni, and of other men and women who love Auburn, and not least, to the patient, painstaking printers of the Advertiser office, the thanks of the compiler are due for help rendered him in his task.

WILLIS J. BEECHER.

GENERAL LISTS.

TRUSTEES.

NOTE. When the date of the death of a Trustee is given, the full notice of him will be found in the Necrological list, under that date. When only the Seminary class to which he belonged is given, the notice will be found in its proper place in the list of that class.

As the names of the men who have been elected Trustees, but have not served, have been published in previous Catalogues, it has been thought proper to retain them, but without statistics.
